

Sitting and Standing Work

When and why client is not laying down...

Instructor: Rita Geirola
May 3rd - 5th, 2019 - Italy

In giving sessions, there can be good reasons to decide to work using different ways to organize the client's body position, like sitting or standing.

It happens more often at the end of a session, to integrate in a different relation to gravity what we have achieved in the lying on the table work.

Or sometimes clients cannot easily lay on the table because of physical impediments, and we have to be able to adapt to their limitations and boundaries.

In any case, having the client in a more active relation to gravity, eliciting the tonic activity to stabilize their system meanwhile receiving the inputs of the rolf work, can be a powerful tool to reach a better level of integration, and learn how to use what they got from the session in a more "every day like" context.

In the workshop students will explore:

- ways to improve self-perception in the clients while he is active in gravity
- ways to give tissue work and offer functional suggestions to the system, both related to the 10 basic sessions, or to specific goals (for example: movement related gesture improvement, like musicians)

Rita Geirola

Certified Advanced Rolfer™. Certified in 1987, Movement Practitioner in 1997, her background includes studies in the field of Physical Education and Mézières Method, as well as certificates as Feldenkrais Practitioner (1992) and Pilates Instructor (1998). Her main curiosity is finding different approaches and languages to address individual client's needs and resources to achieve a full development of their potentiality and integration. Points of view of Hubert Godard, Peter Levine and M. Feldenkrais have had a deep impact on her and her teaching. Rita is a Rolf Institute Instructor in Rolfing® and a Rolf Movement®. She gives individual and group sessions in her practice "Il Punto di Svolta" in Torino, Italy.
